Video testimonies - the story of Nadia Corticelli

Title: Dana's courage

Book: Nadia Corticelli

Abstract:

The testimony brought by Nadia Corticelli is that of her mother, Loredana Armaroli, also known by the battle's name as Dana.

Dana met her husband before the outbreak of the war and the couple has two very different stories. Bruno in fact was part of an anti-fascist family while "Dana" grows up in the house of an aunt to whom her parents had given her since they were very poor. This family was right-wing, it was even the house of a German commando post armistice, which in fact will help the relay activity of Dana because it will allow a certain immunity to checks and roundups. In the story Nadia exalts Dana's courage as she kept hidden messages and hand grenades in her room to help the husband.

ANPI

The National Association of Italian Partisans (ANPI) was established in Rome in 1944, during the Nazi-Fascist occupation of Northern Italy, by volunteers from the central regions partisan war. After Italy's liberation, ANPI expanded nationwide, including regions with sporadic resistance and abroad (Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece, France). On April 5, 1945, it was officially recognized as a moral entity.
